COURSE DESCRIPTION

This three-day, 10-hour, virtual education seminar will touch on topics and issues pertinent to the world of diagnostic and interventional radiology as well as nuclear medicine and cardiac rhythm management services. Sessions will be conducted on three consecutive Tuesdays: September 15, 22, and 29, 2020.

Each day will be comprised of lecture, dictated case report examples and interactive opportunities for attendees to try their hand at application of the rules and concepts learned during the lecture phase of the sessions by coding sample reports examples. These examples will be reviewed by attendees in small Zoom-groups. Then, the presenters will walk through the correct coding of the cases and explain the “why or why-not” of assigned codes. In addition, the lectures will include the importance of keeping your chargemaster up to date including tips throughout the sessions on how radiology, cardiology and your chargemaster department can work together to enhance revenue integrity. Each day will include time to interact with the presenters and vendors for networking and to answer any questions that may arise.

Attendees are able to register for any of the days that they would like, but must attend the entire day to receive CEU credits. The following page includes the agenda for each day.
